The PINE CONE

1951

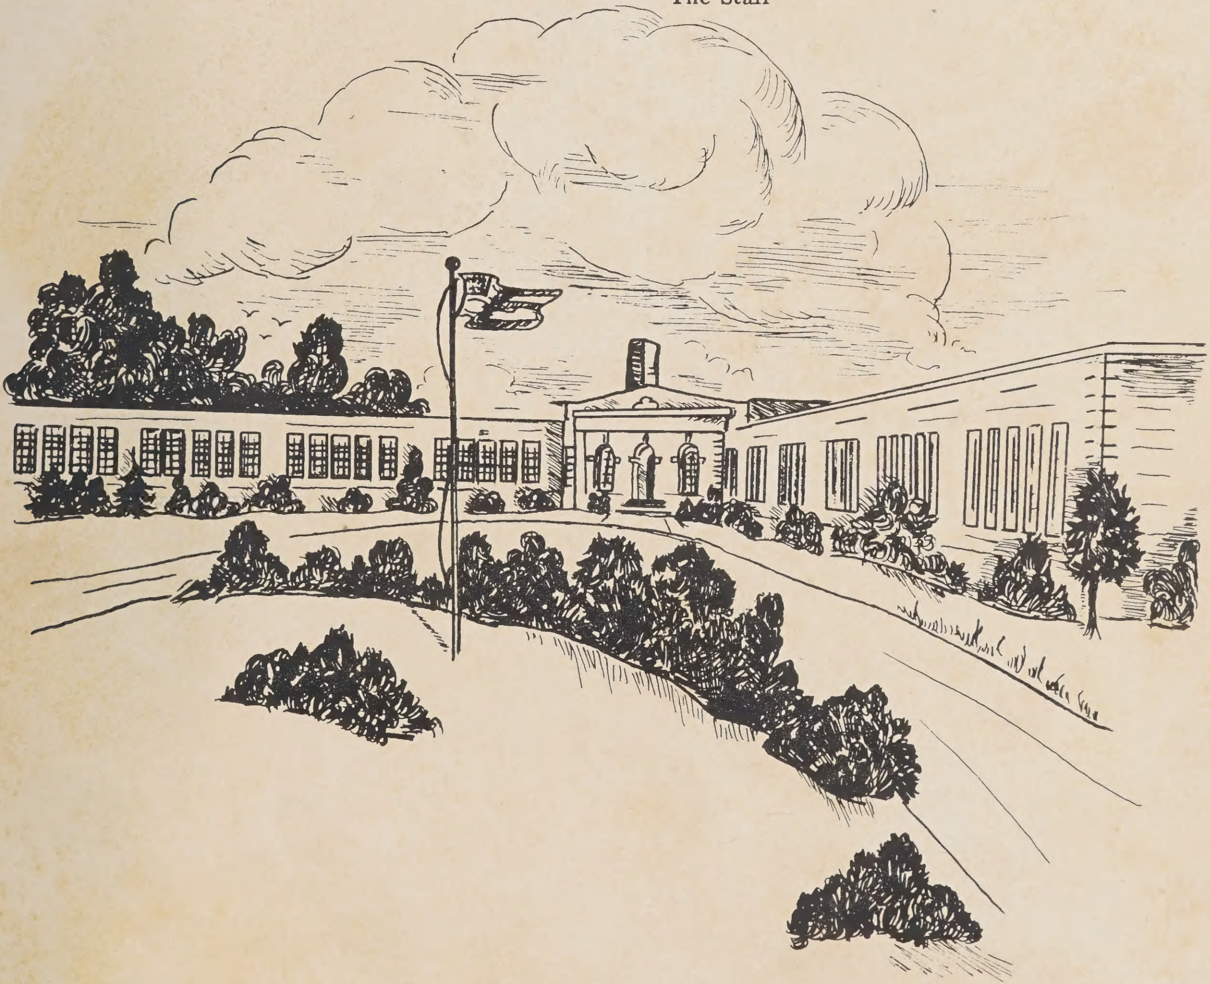
Carol Cameron
Sophomore Class

Foreword

The Pine Cone Staff of 1951 is proud to present volume two of their year book. We hope that in later years, it will be a treasure relic of which you spend pleasant hours reminiscing and cherishing the pictures of by gone days.

With sincere appreciation for the cooperation ofeveryone who helped to make this book possible, we present--- THE 1951 PINE CONE.

The Staff



Dedication

Miss Joyce Peterson

The Annual Staff affectionately dedicates this, Pine Cone, volume two, to one who because of her patience, guidance and understanding has made this book possible. Though here as a teacher she plays another important role in the life of her students--- that of a friend.

Last Will and Testament

1. I, Jack Atkins, leave with pleasure, my seat in U.S. History, to another unfortunate person but the knowledge gained I'll keep.
2. I, Willie Mae Cox, will my fidelity to only one boy, to Helen Coffer.
3. I, Lois Hoffman my slimness do leave to Edith Ridder, my knowledge of worldly subjects to Ruth Bullard.
4. I, Doris Godfrey, wish to leave my curves and curls to Wilma Hoffman.
5. I, Jeannette Wicker, will my ability to always look ''Spic and Span'' to Jack Brooks.
6. I, Cecil Lovick do leave my graceful actions to Gray Matthews and ability to get along with people to Melvin Upchurch.
7. I, Frances Frye, will my athletic ability and shapely legs to Mary E. Thomas.
8. I, Clarence Cameron will my beanpole height and quiet ways to Pat Sherron, (He needs them).
9. I, Faye Stone, do will James to anyone who has the ability to hold him. My love for basketball to Lucille Coley.
10. I, Joyce Lemons, leave, with sorrow, my position as office girl to Lucille Spivey. May she accomplish more than I.
11. I, Peggy Phillips, leave my boy friends to Ann Maddox and Velma Coley. My job at the dime store I give to Carolyn Matthews to occupy ''part of her time.''
12. I, Howard Sherron, will my little store to Guy Stone so that he may gain the favor of the girls, and Guy, when the going gets tough pull mydiscarded''Pesty ways'' out of the bag and carry on.
13. I, Luyine Stone will nothing, as I nave nothing to will but my funny ways and faces- and who wants those?
14. I, Mary F. Heath will my loudness to Ethel Yow, and my love for soldiers and power to ''keep 'em flying'' to Opal Hancock.
15. I, Nancy Dycus, will my ''come hither'' eyes to any bashful freshman, as I only have eyes for ''him''.
16. I, Phyllis Rogers, will my vivacious personality to anyone lucky enough to acquire it, but my singing ability I will keep for future use.
17. I, Bernice Spivey, will my good looks and flirty ways to Martha Shaw.
18. I, Virgil Blakely, will my dignified walk and dating technique to---on second thought, I'll keep 'em!
19. I, Margie Kicklighter, will my size ''7'' dress to Margie Yarborough, hoping someday they'll fit.
20. I, Annella Bradsher, would will my pesty ways to David Brooks but since he has enough I'll take mine with me.
21. I, Hortense Coggins, do will my willingness to get along with Mr. Dail to the rising Senior Class.
22. I, Peggy Baker, will my long glossy, black curls to Jean Holt, my sweet smile to all appreciative receivers.
23. I, Buster Coggins, do will my position as driver of ''24'' to my brother, Jimmy.
24. I, Barbara Nicholson, leave my position at the piano to Johnny Matthews, and my slow, flat talk goes to Marvin Gaster.
25. I, Jack Maddox, gladly leave the worn pages of any English Book to all classes, and my innocent expression to all members of the basketball team.
26. I, Frank Beamer, will my curly hair to Johnny Philips, hoping he'll take advantage of it.

Visiting Old Man Mose

One bright and sunny day in 1965 as I was walking through the woods, I saw something that was very, very strange - a door right out in open space! It was very beautiful, so I decided to open the door and see what was on the other side. "What is it you want? Have you come to see my master?" I was afraid to say no, so he carried me to his master and introduced us. "Mrs. Nancy McDuffie, I'd like for you to meet Mr. Mose. Now talking of being scared, I was shaking like a leaf. Honest, Mr. Mose was the queerest looking person I had ever seen. He was only two feet tall, very slim and had horns.

When I recovered from my scare, I was very polite to him and asked what could he do? He was so small. It looked to me as though he were not large enough to do anything; but much to my surprise, he said. "If you will come into this dark room for just a few minutes, I will show you."

As I entered, there in the center of the room was a large crystal ball and on either side a chair. He said, "Mrs. McDuffie, you sit here and think of your classmates of 1951 and look into the crystal ball." Much to my surprise, there, in the crystal ball were visions of all my classmates at their life's undertakings. The first person I noticed was Peggy Baker, one of my closest classmates, whom I hadn't seen since school was out in 51. She was still single and was secretary to Mr. Kelly who was at Greenwood School. She never could make up her mind even in high school.

As we continued to look into the crystal ball, a sign came into vision, "Watson Hotel of Massachussetts." Of course, Mrs. Watson (Willie Mae Cox) was head waitress. Also, in this same city "The Frye Florist" has become a great success. Frances was interested in floral designing in high school, and she helped decorate for many plays.

Then as visions of North Carolina came back, I saw Cecil Lovick as head surgeon at Lee County Hospital, and he had as his assistant, Annella Bradsher. Annella always wanted to be a beautician in high school, but I suppose her ambitions were greater after she graduated. Cecil seems to be enjoying his work as he did in high school. He enjoys helping other people.

Next, I saw Washington in the Crystal ball, and there in the White House sat Lois Hoffman the United States' first woman President. Also, in this same city, I saw Mary F. Heath as librarian at the Library of Congress. It made me feel good to know that most of my 51 classmates were using their knowledge for the good of other people.

As New York's Wall Street came into vision, I saw a sign "Sherron's Excutive Office." He had become Chief Executive on Wall Street. He had as his secretary one of his classmates - Frank Beamer.

Then, down the street in neon lights was seen "Phyllis Rogers - Starring in New York's Famous Metropolitan Opera." Her dreams had come true, for in high school she was always singing, hoping someday to become a great singer. As I continued to look further down the street, I peeked into Arthur Murray's dancing room; and in his arms Miss Bernice Spivey. Her dream of taking dancing lessons from Arthur Murray had also come true.

Again, the Crystal Ball revealed North Carolina. On two small adjoining farms lived Mr. and Mrs. Jack Atkins and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Blakeley, (Margie) of course, I might have known. Also on a farm near Cameron, lived Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cameron. The Camerons had a group of fine husky boys. I guess Clarence wanted a basketball team.

The scenery of the ball changed, and vision of the ocean came through. Out there on a large ship were Peggy Phillips and Joyce Lemons. Both had become secretaries of the Waves. That was their ambition in high school.

Traveling on over the ocean to Egypt we saw Jack Maddox - one of the United States most famous geologists. He went over in 1956 to try to dig up some of the city ruins to study them. Also, over here, we saw Doris Godfrey, who had become a missionary. As soon as she finished high school she began her studies; and with her was Barbara Jane Nicholson. Barbara went along with Doris to Egypt to play the piano to help bring people closer to God by music.

While still overseas a vision of Paris came through, and there in a fashion shop was Jeannette Wicker. She was Manager of the "Franchei" and traveled over the world getting the latest fashions to feature in her shop.

Going back to the U. S., I saw Mrs. James Eads (Faye) living on a large farm in the Lemon Springs community. Faye and James both were interested in sports, and I noticed at the back of the house was a bunch of fine husky children, so they probably had a team of their own.

As other visions came forth, I saw Hortense Coggins surrounded in flowers. She had opened a flower shop of her own in Carthage.

Buster Coggins was the next one I saw. He was operating a garage of his own in Sanford. He always seemed to be one with a mechanical mind.

Gee Whiz! As I looked out the window it was dark. I told Mr. Mose I had to get home and cook supper for Curell.

I hated to leave Mr. Mose. It seemed so good to see all my classmates, but it seemed as though I hadn't seen one of them.

After supper I told Currell all about my expedition that afternoon, but he said, "You must have eaten something for lunch that didn't agree with you." I tried to make him believe it, but he wouldn't. Just as I had decided to stop trying to make him believe it, Mr. Mose walked in. He said, "Just as you left, another vision came through of one of your classmates - that of Luyine Stone. She is now a famous comedian over Bing Crosby's T. V. Show and she is crazy as ever."

When Mr. Moses left, Curell said, "I'll bet it was wonderful to see all your classmates. I'm sorry I didn't believe you."

Carol,
It has really been nice having your friendship since I have been at Greenwood. You have been very sweet and kind. I shall always remember the good times we have had sewing in study hall, and in French. Here's wishing you the best of everything life can give. You have certainly done your part. I am looking forward to being with you again next year.

Lovingly,
Mary Elizabeth

Always LOOK after
Mr. Dail.
Cecil Lovick

Carol,

It sure has been a pleasure being in High school with you, and knowing as I do. Thanks for helping in the banquet, we sure needed your help. You made a good hostess. Maybe you can't have me in your next year. May you have the be luck always. And keep your high standards.

A friend,
Dewey
